Helios Sunlit

Helios is the male god of the sun in Greek mythology, and the god of vows and visions. In ancient paintings, he is often depicted as a handsome Titan man, usually without a beard, dressed in purple robes, with a status halo behind his head, and riding a sun chariot pulled by four winged horses through the sky.

Design concept

Geometric graphics has always been one of the enduring elements in the art circle. It is widely used in various fields of creation and is sought after by many artists. This sculpture uses lines, squares, circles and other geometric patterns to piece together a radial line of the sun shape.
